Did you hear that?

Improving your hearing can support physical safety and social and mental well-being.

Visit the KHSC Hearing Aid Dispensary

Located in Kingston Health Sciences Centre's (KHSC) Audiology Clinic, we offer full-service hearing care and a range of budget-friendly hearing devices.

Start with a hearing test

If you're noticing changes in your hearing, you may qualify for an OHIP-funded assessment with a licensed hospital audiologist.

During your test, we can:

- Check your hearing and review any changes.
- Talk about your communication needs.
- Recommend next steps, including hearing aids or other assistive devices as needed.

Why choose us?

- Services for all ages – from infants to older adults – provided by KHSC staff.
- Discounted rates and funding support, depending on eligibility.
- Testing, fittings, repairs, accessories and follow-up care.
- If purchased at KHSC, appointments to check your hearing aids are included for a minimum of two years.
- We are independent from hearing aid companies and work with all major producers.

Hearing aids can help

Hearing aids are designed to amplify soft sounds and manage background noise to improve what you hear.

If hearing aids might help you, a hearing aid evaluation with an audiologist will be booked for a fee. The fee may be claimed on your income tax return or covered through an extended health benefit plan.

A prescription may be given for hearing aids that meet your unique needs. There is no pressure to buy.

Getting your hearing aids

When you decide to purchase hearing aids from us, you will learn about the Assistive Device Program (ADP), which can help pay for part of the cost. Prices are approximately $700 and up per ear after using the ADP grant and are subject to change.

When you order hearing aids, we may take a mold of your ears. We will book a fitting appointment, and payment is due at that time.

Checking your hearing aids

When purchased at KHSC, follow-up audiologist appointments to check your hearing aids are included for a minimum of two years.

If the hearing aids are not working for you, they can be returned or exchanged within the trial period.

There is no fee to exchange hearing aids for a different type, though returns for a refund are subject to a per-unit return fee to cover time and materials.

Let us know if you think something is wrong with your hearing aids. Sometimes they just need adjustment or repair.
